Transcript of Interview of GetMePlacement, LLC President
OCE Review 18-2049
May 22, 2018
Okay. Speaking is Helen Eisner. This is May 22nd, 2018. I am here with Deputy Chief Counsel Paul Solis. This is Review 18-2049. We are here with GetMePlacement, LLC President (“GMP President”).

[GMP President]. It's fine.

Pronounced [GMP President]. Okay.

That's okay.

We have given [GMP President] a copy of the False Statements Act. He has signed the acknowledgement form, and I think we can go ahead and get started. Just some basic background questions to begin with. Where do you currently work?

I work at Get Me Placement, is the company name.

What is your role for Get Me Placement?

I'm the President of the company.

What is Get Me Placement?

We are a search engine marketing company. We also teach people how to get into this business. Some people think it's odd that we're creating competitors, but there are so many websites that need help or need fixing to be able to be found on the front page of the search engines, Yahoo, Google, and Bing, that we could certainly never call them all or help them all, and so we have started, about 10 years ago, teaching people our trade, if you will, and helping them get started in this business, which is exactly what has happened with Tin Moon.

We will certainly get into that in a little more detail.

I'm sure we will.

10 years ago, you started teaching people this. Is that when the company started?

No, we actually started as an organization ... We still have our same head tech. We started in 1998, and under a different name, but again, same organization. I think, as a company called Get Me Placement, I think it was 2004 is when we actually formed that.
Helen Eisner: Besides Get Me Placement, are you employed by any other companies?

GMP President: No, ma'am.

Helen Eisner: Okay. You talked generally about Get Me Placement and what it does, what its goal is as a business, but what types of services and products does Get Me Placement offer?

GMP President: We offer internet placement. Typically, we would be focused on helping people that are currently advertising to be found online, or participating in what's called AdWords. If you do a search for something, up at the top, those people are paying for those ads. We are helping those people stop paying for those ads and get them in what's called the organic listings in the middle of the page, which is where over 80% of the people click. We also do web development. We also host websites, and then we, again, will teach people this business.

Helen Eisner: Part of the process is teaching people the business, and then there's the AdWords component, and advertisement. Is that something that you do in-house, or is there a product that you provide to people?

GMP President: There's no product that we would provide. It's strictly a service that we provide, in what I call, in very simple terms, fixing their website. With every sale, if you will, every client, we will add new pages to the client's website, so that's part of our process. Whether we have our own clients, or whether what we call ... Someone that has purchased our software licensing agreement, or SLA, we call them an affiliate, just so that we're all on the same page. If I use the word affiliate, you'll know what I mean. Tin Moon is an affiliate. In addition to teaching them all of our methodologies, we will also provide them with the ability to hire us to do the technical work, so a large part of what we do is helping our affiliates perform the optimization work, for clients that they have gone and sold, and they're collecting the money. They're their clients. Those clients don't even know who I am, or Get Me Placement is, but we are doing the technical work.

I think that's important for you guys to ... I'm glad you asked, to understand in some of the original, we'll call it dust that got kicked up about the Tin Moon and their advertising and that kind of thing. If they're a brand new company, how could they have helped 10,000 clients? You know, that kind of thing. What should have been clarified on Tin Moon's part is that they utilize a tech team that has that kind of experience, which I think spelled it out fairly clearly. Hopefully I did. I certainly attempted to in my response back to you guys, that we can provide, and a lot of times do provide, at least for a certain time frame. It varies. It's up to the affiliate to be able to decide ... I always do this, when they want to cut the umbilical cord and break free from us, because it's their business. We've taught them everything they need to know, but some of them, they want to stay close to us, and allow us to do the technical work, and all they have to focus on are sales.

Helen Eisner: That make sense. That's really helpful. The term that you used, both in e-mail to me, and you just used, software licensing agreement, the way you've explained it to us just now, it seems like there's sort of technical support and training, but is there an actual software that is exchanged, a piece of software?

GMP President: It's web-based. Yes, ma'am. It is web-based. Each affiliate gets their own licensed copy that they can use, and I believe that this particular one would have tinmoontracker.com, or something like that, and so everyone receives a licensed copy of the software, but you're absolutely right.
Training, mentorship, coaching, technical support, and then use of the software that we developed ourselves.

Helen Eisner: How many affiliates does Get Me Placement have?

GMP President: We have 91 affiliates.

Helen Eisner: Okay. One of the components you just talked about has to do with updating affiliates' websites and working on their websites. I'm just going through these documents. This is a page of the website that I pulled last week, which is the Updating My Website portion of the Get Me Placement website. I'm sure you are very familiar with this, but I'll just provide you a copy of it. If you could explain to us, what does it mean to update one of these affiliates' websites? What are the steps that you go through?

GMP President: What I'm referring to here is, in updating a site, there's two things that are important. There's visibility, like you want to be able to be found. You want people to actually see your website, and then also, conversions, meaning people come to your site. Are they taking any action? Are they taking the next step? Are they picking up the phone and calling you? Are they filling out a form to send you an email? That kind of thing. As it states here, "What good would it do if we were to bring you five times more traffic, if people simply get to your site and they say, 'Oh, this looks awful,' and they reach up and they click their back button with their mouse or their track pad?" It is important that people update their site so that it is meeting the needs of their visitors, is what this is describing.

Helen Eisner: What is that process? As far as, there's a new affiliate that comes on board, how do you go about ... I mean, you've talked about the goals of visibility and conversions, but what does Get Me Placement do with a new affiliate, as far as updating the website?

GMP President: This, Helen, is geared toward what I would call an end user. This would not be geared toward an affiliate, for example. We will launch, as part of the software licensing agreement, as I've provided a copy for you guys ... It includes that we will build them a website, and for Tin Moon, we built them a website. After the launch of the website, it's their website. I'm not saying this like it's a bad thing. It's their website. They can do with it whatever they want to and in Tin Moon’s instance, they did. Other affiliates have gone on to change their website. We just get them started, if you will, with a website. I don't recall an instance, ever, that we've gone in, and we have gone in and changed an affiliate’s website after the initial launch. Perhaps we have, but I'm not aware of it if we have, so they may go take and go, "You know what? This was fine to get started with, because I wanted to get started quickly in this business, but now I want a better, bigger, more robust, beautiful website," and they'll go hire someone and do it on their own.

Helen Eisner: Eventually, the affiliate takes ownership and control over the content that's on the website, but initially, Get Me Placement will do the build out, as far as ... Is that correct?

GMP President: That's fair. That's a good way to put it. They take immediate ownership of it, yeah. As soon as we build it, I mean, it's theirs. It's got their name on it, and they own the domain name. Now, we may host it for them as a courtesy, but that's not the norm. Usually, it's hosted by them somewhere else, and we just provide them with something to get started with.

Helen Eisner: For all clients, all affiliates, do you build from a template, or is it customized? How does that work?

GMP President: Typically, it's a template. We will use templates that we have purchased from a company called Elegant Themes, and we direct the affiliate to look at those templates and choose one from their ... So, they're WordPress template-based.

Helen Eisner: It's template-based, and the affiliate has some ability to choose different types of content that will be used. Is that a fair ...

GMP President: Sure. Absolutely, and in every instance, they will provide us with logos, pictures, anything like that that they want on their site. They provide that to us.
Helen Eisner: Getting into some more specifics, Ed Graham. Who is he, and what is your relationship with him?

GMP President: Ed, as I understand it, is an owner in Tin Moon, and an owner in Digital Canal, and I'm not certain of his title. I think he's the President. That would be my educated guess, that he's the President of the companies. He is the one that I have had 99% of contact to. In my response, I said there was a gentleman, I've never heard of his name, and he's on their website. I don't know who that person is. There's a video of him. I don't know who he is or what function he provides. I have had contact. The young lady that brought you downstairs, Monique? Monique and I went up to their offices to train them, and Ed was in training, and Monty ... I think Alexander is his last name ... was in training, and then there was another gentleman that I think he is no longer with the company.

Helen Eisner: Do you remember his name?

GMP President: I want to say it was Paul, but I don't recall.

Helen Eisner: Just so I'm clear, when you're talking about you went up there, and met with them, are you talking about Digital Canal, or Tin Moon, or how are you differentiating between the two?

GMP President: That's a good and a fair question. As I reflected in my response back to you, Tin Moon is who sent us a check, and that's who paid for this joint agreement, which is an unusual situation. In fact, I can't think of another instance where this has happened this way, where a company pays for the cost of the software license, which is identified in the agreement, but they also paid for services as well, and the services were for digitalcanal.com, and digitalcanalstructural.com. When we went up there, I'd have to say, Helen, in all fairness, I would think that we went up there to help them have a better understanding of Digital Canal's services that they purchased, but I think, again, easily, the main purpose of the trip was for Tin Moon's training.

Helen Eisner: When was that trip?

GMP President: I don't have the exact dates, but August of 2016.

Helen Eisner: Okay. All right. There's a lot to break apart, so let me just go through a few more background questions. As far as Ed Graham, you said you had about 99% of the contact related to these companies was him. How did you first come to meet Ed Graham?
GMP President: That's a great question, and I'm not certain. We did not reach out to them. You know, Ed Graham ... I do know. Let me start over. Ed Graham found an ad that was placed by a broker of ours for this business opportunity was available, and Ed reached out to the broker, and then they talked about the opportunity of the business, if you will, and then Ed and I connected at the broker's exchange of, "Here's [GMP President]'s information, and [GMP President], here's Ed's information," and then we spoke by telephone.

Helen Eisner: Do you know approximately, was that in 2016? What time period?

GMP President: It was. I would say it was probably in the March time frame. They didn't sign up immediately, as I recall, and then we prepared the agreement in early May, so March, April of '16.

Helen Eisner: From that point forward, how often do you communicate with Ed Graham?

GMP President: Since that time? After the initial training that we went up there in August of '16, I don't recall having any conversations with Ed for several months, until they started actively selling for Tin Moon.

Helen Eisner: When was that, when they started actively selling for Tin Moon?

GMP President: April of '17.

Helen Eisner: Just a few more background questions. What is your relationship with Congressman Rod Blum?

GMP President: I don't have one at all. I've never met him. I've never spoken to him. I've never corresponded with him. I would have to say it's at zero.

Helen Eisner: What is your knowledge of his involvement with either Digital Canal or Tin Moon?

GMP President: Of course, I've not seen any documentation of ownership or titles or anything like that, but the impression that I have from Ed is that he is more of a financial partner, and not necessarily an active partner. Now, that's my impression. Rod may come to work every day, and if he does, I'm not aware of it. When I was there, he was not in the office, and I was there for two and a half days, and he was not in the office, so I never met him.

Helen Eisner: What was it that gave you the impression he was more of a financial partner?
GMP President: Just the way that Ed spoke of him. Ed did mention originally, in our early conversations, that a U.S. Congressman was involved or would be involved in the business, and to what extent, he didn't say and I didn't ask. I don't know, maybe from something I've seen online, that he is a majority owner. I think I saw, read, and again, who knows whether it's true or not, that he's a 70% owner, but Ed never shared that with me. I have no direct knowledge from Ed or anyone at Digital Canal or Tin Moon or anything, anybody there, of Mr. Blum's ownership interest, percentage, or daily function, if any. I have no idea, because I've never, ever spoken to him, and I've talked to Ed a bunch of times.

Helen Eisner: One thing I just want to clarify, when we're talking about him being a financial partner or that he might have a certain percentage ownership, are you talking Tin Moon or are you talking about Digital Canal?

GMP President: My impression would be both. Yeah, both. Again, I've only been there once, but not ever having had a conversation or the opportunity to meet Mr. Blum, or correspond with him, I just don't know. The way that Ed referred to him is that he was a partner, but it appeared that Ed ran the business.

Helen Eisner: Now, just focusing in on Digital Canal, what is your understanding of that business and what they do?

GMP President: They are a company that provides software to builders and designers, and other than that, that's really about all I know.

Helen Eisner: Prior to March 2016, when you said approximately that was the time period for when Ed Graham reached out to you, was there any type of relationship between Get Me Placement and Digital Canal, prior to March 2016?

GMP President: No, ma'am. None whatsoever. The initial contact was regarding the business opportunity through the broker.

Helen Eisner: Now, just isolated again to Digital Canal, what is the business relationship between Digital Canal and Get Me Placement?

GMP President: I would say that it is reflective on our agreement with them that I shared with you. I would say that it would be reflective there. They are seeking internet visibility for Digital Canal and digitalcanalstructural.com.

Helen Eisner: Is that the only agreement that exists between Get Me Placement and Digital Canal?
GMP President: Yes, it is.

Helen Eisner: Yes, okay. Why don't we get into that agreement? I'll provide you a copy of that, and we can start talking about it. Here you go.

GMP President: Thank you.

Helen Eisner: I'm sure you're familiar with it, but for the record, this is TM_0009 through TM_0014. Those are just numbers that help us identify what documents we're talking about for the transcript. The first portion of the agreement seems to focus on Digital Canal, and the first sentence really says, "Thank you for selecting ... " And this is addressed to Ed Graham for Digital Canal Corporation and Tin Moon Corporation. "Thank you for selecting getmeplacement.com to optimize your website." I know you've talked to us about Get Me Placement and what their goal is when working with affiliates, but if you can describe to us what it means here, to optimize their website, what the goal of this contract was.

GMP President: Just for your understanding and clarification, this would be the language that we would typically have a separate agreement for, for what we would call an end user, not an affiliate, but what they are contracting us to do is to optimize or fix, and in layman's terms, fix their website so that they would appear better and be more relevant for keyword phrases in the major search engines, Google, Yahoo, and Bing, and that is what this is referring to. Of course, it tells us here in the agreement what we're going to focus on.

Helen Eisner: You talked earlier about training that took place. Would any portion of this contract related to Digital Canal involve that type of training or software license?

GMP President: It would not. Yeah, it would not.

Helen Eisner: That's what you mean when you're saying typically, this would have been an end user agreement rather than the affiliate type of structure?

GMP President: Yeah, that's correct. Again, I do not recall us entering into an agreement like this ever before, but this is how they would like for it to be structured, and I didn't see that it was a problem.

Helen Eisner: Why was it that they wanted it to be structured this way?

GMP President: I don't recall, and I'm not sure. I know that they wanted it tied together, and why, I don't recall why it was. I do recall, Helen, that there was an original discussion about it just being to Ed Graham and Digital Canal, and then, at Ed’s request, that we change it and add Tin Moon Corporation to it.

When you said tied together, earlier, you meant tied together in that Digital Canal and Tin Moon were both incorporated into the agreement? Is that what you mean?

That's what I meant by that, yes, ma'am, that they wanted one agreement, "Let's put it together as one agreement instead of two separate agreements."

I'm looking at page ... it's stamped as 0010, towards the bottom, the second page of that packet, talking about pricing. Since this was an unusual arrangement, tying those two together, how did that affect pricing for Digital Canal in this portion of the agreement?

Just totally separate. Again, it was as if they were two separate agreements, talking about the corporate optimization, and then after that, this is solely for the optimization work. Not for the training and the software license and all of that.

That's not what that paid for.

The prices here ... I see the 50,000 for initial optimization work, and then a non-refundable deposit of 15,000, totaling 65,000, and then it says, "DCC, Digital Canal Corporation, will owe a balance of 86,875." How did that sum come out of the 65,000? Just trying to understand this in the context of the agreement as a whole, but getting those numbers.

That's a good question. That's the total amount of money that they paid for everything. We combined the pricing for the software license along with the work, so the total combined that they paid was the 65, plus the 86,875.

This was in addition, so Digital Canal owed both the 65 and the 86,875?

Yes. Yes, and I do recall that the money that we received from them was a check from Digital Canal. It didn't say Tin Moon on the check. It's my understanding that Tin Moon was not even formed yet. When I referred to talking to Ed originally about the agreement, that it didn't have Tin Moon on it, I recall that the name Tin Moon had not even been established yet, so it would be highly unlikely that it would have already been a corporation established at that point.
Helen Eisner: This final agreement does use the name Tin Moon, so at some point during that negotiation process, Tin Moon was incorporated?

GMP President: At least that the name was chosen, because not too far prior to this, the name of the company that was going to be selling the search engine optimization services had not been decided upon. I mean, maybe they got a two- or three-day corporation set up or something. I don't know, but I know just prior to this, Helen, that the name had not even been finalized or determined or whatever. Under the pricing, because there's no other place on this agreement that talks about ... Well, no, there is two, here on 12.

Helen Eisner: Yeah, I mean, if we look at 0012, and I do want to talk about Tin Moon in general-

Paul Solis: It's also on 11. It's on 11 as well.

Helen Eisner: ... but there are different places in the agreement, I think the main sections being that pricing section on the second page of the agreement, talking about DC, so Digital Canal, and then the fourth page of the agreement starts to talk about Tin Moon and what they owe as a part of the agreement. I realize it's a little confusing because they are tied together.

GMP President: I remember that it was a crazy, laborious task to put this together because it was so confusing. It would have been so simple just to have two separate agreements. "Let's have an agreement for Digital Canal for the optimization work, and then let's have another one for the software license agreement," but again, they wanted it this way. I'm trying to remember, and I'm also trying to think of maybe why that was, and I think maybe because it was Digital Canal that paid for everything.

Helen Eisner: I just want to make sure I understand, because I think earlier, a few minutes back, you said that Tin Moon had paid for everything, and then you said Digital Canal.

GMP President: Oh no. If I did, that was a mistake. No, no, no. I remember very clearly, Digital Canal is who paid, and I want to say they paid in two checks, and each time, they were Digital Canal checks. They did not, for clarity, did not have Tin Moon on them. Yeah, Digital Canal.

Helen Eisner: These were corporate checks, not personal checks?

GMP President: Correct.

Helen Eisner: How far apart were those two checks received, approximately?
GMP President: Well, one check was received pretty quickly after the agreement, and then I think the balance of the money was in the June-July time frame, and then we had training in August.

Helen Eisner: I'm going to just table this for a second and talk a little bit about Tin Moon, and then we'll come back to this.

Paul Solis: Quickly, who signed the checks? Was it Mr. Graham?

GMP President: I don't know. I'd have to contact the bank, I guess, to see if they can go back and go see, but I don't remember that.

Paul Solis: Just whatever you recall.

GMP President: Sure, sure, yeah. I appreciate that, but yeah, no, I don't remember. I just don't remember who signed it, but I do remember it was Digital Canal, without hesitation.

Helen Eisner: You've talked a little bit about Tin Moon's goal in this agreement being somewhat different as far as taking on that affiliate status, but what is Tin Moon? What is their business model?

GMP President: Tin Moon's business model is seeking new clients that they can help improve their search engine relevance, and get those businesses' websites on the front pages of the major search engines.

Helen Eisner: What types of clients are they seeking?

GMP President: All types of clients. Typically, of course, they're going to have websites, but they're, again, people that would be participating in the AdWords up at the top of the search engines, and helping them stop paying those high prices and get onto the front page of the search engines. I mean, whether it's a service provider or someone that sells products, we would typically focus on people that would provide a service of some kind, any kind. Roofing, plumbing, paper shredding, a doctor, a dentist, they provide services, so it would be anyone like that.

Helen Eisner: Is there a particular industry that Tin Moon was focused on? Roofing, plumbing. Was there an industry that they-

GMP President: No, because the leads that we would send them that are included in the agreement, and which are referenced here on one of these pages, we're going to give them leads, 5,000 sales leads. Those are just simply businesses that are paying per click, so it could be anything. Now, it's my understanding that Monty did reach out to a number of Digital Canal's existing clients, which I would fully support. If you have a name and a phone number, and a relationship with those people, call them and ask them, "You're not on the front page of Google. Would you like to be? I did some Yahoo searches and Bing searches, and I can't find you. Would you like to be on the front page?" Sure, do it.

Helen Eisner: What is Monty Alexander's role with Tin Moon?

GMP President: He's a sales representative, and he is also a sales representative for Digital Canal, so he works for both companies, which is my experience with him.

When we went up for training, he was with, and had been there for a while, had been with Digital Canal, and then he was going to start selling SEO. It's my understanding that he doesn't do it ... Tin Moon, he doesn't do it full-time, it's just ... I don't know. I don't know what causes him to switch hats. Day of the week, hour of the day, I don't know, but he still, as I understand it, he still works for both.

Helen Eisner: What is your understanding of how much, percentage-wise, of his time he spends at Tin Moon versus Digital Canal?

GMP President: I know in a typical setting, I'm not supposed to guess, but I feel like this is not a typical setting, so my guess is that he would focus the majority of his time on Digital Canal.

Helen Eisner: What are you basing that on?

GMP President: The limited conversations that I've had with him in the last year, very limited, and that he's not really focused on this. When I say this, I mean Tin Moon. I don't feel like that he's devoting that much time to it.

Helen Eisner: What was the reason you had those conversations?

GMP President: One instance was that he had a Digital Canal client that wanted a new website, and that was one of the few conversations I've had with him.
Then recently, he had sold a client a few months ago. He and I have not spoken, as I responded in my deal. He and I have not corresponded directly, but I understand from speaking with Ed that Monty has sent a few emails to this client of Tin Moon's.

Helen Eisner: Emails pertaining to-

GMP President: A Tin Moon client.

Helen Eisner: Pertaining to their website?
GMP President: Yes, their website, and more specifically, to their optimization.

Helen Eisner: When would he have sent those emails, approximately? Time frame?

GMP President: Recently. In the last 30, 45 days.

Helen Eisner: Besides Monty Alexander and Ed Graham, and you mentioned an individual named Paul who was at a training, what other employees or officers of Tin Moon are you aware of?

GMP President: None. I mean, I've called and some nice person answered the phone, but I don't know who they were. Officers was your question? I'm not aware of any.

Helen Eisner: Or employees.

GMP President: Or employees, yeah, I'm not aware of any.

Helen Eisner: You've talked about this, but let's just get it for the record specifically. What is the business relationship between Tin Moon and Get Me Placement?

GMP President: They purchased a ... Well, I say they. I mean, it depends on how technical you get. Digital Canal purchased a software license for Tin Moon through Get Me Placement.

Helen Eisner: As far as you, yourself, what role have you played for Tin Moon besides your role for Get Me Placement?

GMP President: For Tin Moon, coach and mentor for any questions that they have regarding any potential clients, any potential resellers, and any issues that they have with their clients. Ed, I think because he is an older gentleman, as I am, is somewhat of an older school, and prefers to call me with any issues, as opposed to any of the more than capable folks that you saw upstairs. Our other affiliates, we'll typically reach out to them, and if they have any questions or issues or whatever, but Ed typically will just reach straight out to me, and that's okay. I don't mind.

Helen Eisner: The website for Tin Moon currently lists you as Chief Technology Officer and Director, SEO Activity and Research. What is that position and title, and how are you involved in the company as it relates to that title?

GMP President: In my response, I hope that I was crystal clear. I have an issue with whether ... And I'm not an attorney. You'll have to help me with that, but I am not the first title. What did you say it was again?
Helen Eisner: Chief Technology Officer.

GMP President: Yeah, any C-level type thing, I feel like that person is part of that company. I think that's the impression that it gives, and that is not accurate. That is something that we discussed, and that I had an issue with. There was another thing on their website that I had a tremendous issue with, and it was, they put a Google-certified partner logo in my little boxed area, and I am not. I am Google-certified from taking and passing two tests, but I'm not a certified partner because I felt like they were extorting $10,000. They said, "Now that you've passed the test, we would like for you to prove your knowledge and spend $10,000 on AdWords," and I'm like, "Why didn't you say this in the beginning, or I wouldn't have taken those two, three-hour long tests, each of them?" When I told you there was a phone call, that was the subject of that phone call, was that that was not accurate and that needed to be removed immediately, and it was.

Helen Eisner: That was a phone call with Mr. Graham?

GMP President: Yes. Yes, exactly.

Helen Eisner: When was that phone call?

GMP President: I think I stated it in the deal. I think it was ...

Helen Eisner: About February ...

GMP President: February 26th? Yes.

Helen Eisner: Yes.

GMP President: Yes, that's it.

Helen Eisner: Okay, that's the call that you were referring to.

GMP President: That's the call.

Helen Eisner: At this point, when this information was added, both the Google-certified logo and your title and biography on the website, was that a point when Digital Canal ... Well, I'm sorry, when Tin Moon had taken back that control over the content of the website?

GMP President: Helen, I'm not sure. I don't know when it was changed. They didn't reach out to us, and I tried to convey that. It is their website, but when it involves me and what my accreditations are and/or my titles, I don't know.
when that was changed. It was not changed with our ... I want to be fair here. It's not like they have to ask our permission to change their site. They didn't ask permission to change it. I felt like they should have asked me. I'm okay with any affiliate saying that I'm their Director of SEO, to help them get started with their new business, because we are doing the technical work, but I feel like it's a misrepresentation, if you will, that I'm their Chief Technology Officer, because again, that sounds like I'm an owner in the business, or I'm certainly a corporate title-holder in the business, and I feel like that's misleading, and I expressed that to Ed.

Helen Eisner: Do any of the templates that Get Me Placement works from provide a biography of you and list you as Director of SEO Activity?

GMP President: No, ma'am. There are a few out on the internet like that, but it is not part of the template, I promise you. If they ask, then I'm okay with it. If they say that I'm their head SEO guy, or I'm their Director of SEO, I don't have a problem with that at all, because they're using us to do their technical work, but it is not part of the template.

Helen Eisner: Bringing it back to Tin Moon, how successful has Tin Moon been?

GMP President: My general impression is that it hasn't been something that they have focused on. As I recall, they don't have very many clients, and that's another impression that I have about Monty, about how much time he spends on Tin Moon. I think it's very limited. People that we have trained in the past, and that do focus on obtaining new clients, typically do very well. I mean, it was months into 2017, whatever that is ... seven, eight months after training, before they even obtained their first client. That's very unusual. Typically, it happens within the first month or two, so I just don't feel like that it was something that they focused on in 2016.

Helen Eisner: You said that happened approximately April 2017?

GMP President: Mm-hmm (affirmative).

Helen Eisner: Since that time, how many clients are you aware of that they've obtained?

GMP President: I would guess that they have maybe six clients.

Helen Eisner: What is that based on?

GMP President: The number of clients that they've entered into their software. I could gain access to it and go log in and look, and I could tell you and not guess, but I feel like that's their business, and just because I can go look, I could look at it, but I don't think I'm supposed to. That's the way I feel like it. I feel like it's their business, and they can charge whatever they want to charge, and all those things. It's their business. If they want to offer a discount, they can offer a discount. I could go look, and I could go see the date that someone signed up, and go look and see how many there are. I just haven't done that.

Helen Eisner: Every time they get a new client, it's logged, so that would be the basis.

GMP President: Yes, ma'am. That'd be the proof, yeah. I can't imagine that they would ever, ever sign someone up and not put it in their system.

Helen Eisner: What's your impression, at this point ... I mean, you said approximately six clients. Are they still actively seeking new clients?

GMP President: I would assume so. I haven't been told that they have ceased. They don't sign up clients very often, and so it doesn't seem to be a priority for them to focus on this, and I don't know what that reason is. I do know that on several occasions, since beginning our relationship with Ed, I shared with him, a lot of our affiliates will reach out to a web developer, and create a relationship with the web developer where the web developer can refer business. There were a number of instances where Ed felt like he had found a good resource for that, and then I think ultimately, out of the few times maybe that's happened, two, three times, that I recall, it didn't work out.

I keep giving you the impression that they're not really focused on it. Ed did reach out to me I would say early this year, and requested potentially we work on, or at least consider finding someone together, maybe letting me help him find someone, maybe around here, because there's not a whole lot of business in Dubuque, Iowa, and so maybe in the North Texas area, maybe I could help him find someone. I mean, they are thinking about it, and that's what tells me, again, that I feel like that they're still interested in this, but it's not something I think they wake up and think about like the other affiliates do.

Helen Eisner: When they find a new client, what is the charge for that client to have access to their services?

GMP President: It's published on their website, depending on what level of service that client chose.

Helen Eisner: What is your knowledge of that?

GMP President: It varies. It can be as low as $6,000 to start, and $599 per month, up to tens of thousands of dollars to start.
Helen Eisner: As far as the six clients that you're aware of, do you know where they fall in that range?

GMP President: I think that they fall in what we would call a level 10 category, that are typically $10,000 to start, and then $999 per month. Again, the six is a guess. It could be four, but I think it's somewhere in that range.

Helen Eisner: Let's go back to the agreement and talk about this a little bit more. We talked about the first portion as far as optimizing the Digital Canal website, and then on page three, which is TM_0011, it says at the top, "Double Corporate Level 25 and Software License Agreements." Can you explain to us what that entails?

GMP President: The top line?

Helen Eisner: The, "Double Corporate Level 25 and Software License Agreements."

GMP President: The, "Double Corporate Level 25," I just referred to the level 10, so Digital Canal purchased two level 25s. It's also in the reference, Helen, on the first page, or TM_0009, under the reference, "Level 25 opt," abbreviated for optimization number one, "Digital Canal. Level 25 optimization number two, digitalcanalstructural.com," and then back to page 11 that you referred to at the top, in bold, "And Software License Agreement." That's what is the SLA, we abbreviated to call it, and that's what Digital Canal purchased for Tin Moon to operate under.

Helen Eisner: Further down on that page, there's a list of seven different products that are included. Those are the products, and correct me if I'm wrong, that Tin Moon would have access to as part of this executed agreement.

GMP President: That's correct.

Helen Eisner: On the next page, TM_0012, let's again look at that pricing section and just see if we can make sense of it. What I see is, "Tracker system software license and training is offered for a cash discounted price of $130,000." There's also a deposit for $15,000, and a special affiliate price of $50,000. It's a total amount of $151,875, but the amount of $65,000 will be credited. To make sense of this, does that help you understand maybe the Digital Canal portion of the pricing any further, as far as what this agreement meant?

GMP President: As I recall, the total amount that they paid was $151,875.

Helen Eisner: The $65,000 will be credited off the total amount ... On page two of the agreement, it seems that the total cost of the products, the services, really,
I guess, offered to Digital Canal is $65,000. Was the $65,000 credited off of the $151,875 that represented the value of Tin Moon's portion of the agreement?

GMP President: I believe that's correct. Let me grab my calculator. I think that's correct. It's funny how I can remember going through this back and forth, thinking, "Oh my gosh. Is this right?"

Helen Eisner: Yeah, and I think just looking at it, I want to make sure that we understand the math.

GMP President: Yes, I would say that that is accurate, that $65,000 would have been applied to the ... Actually, 15 of that was also part of the software, so I would say, from looking at this, that $50,000 of this was for the optimization work for the two websites, basically $25,000 each.

Helen Eisner: Is this combining the pricing that was listed earlier for Digital Canal, in addition? I'm looking at what looks like a tracker system software license of at least $130,000 for Tin Moon, and the non-refundable deposit, so let me try to break this down. The value of what Tin Moon received, was that $151,875 as far as the value, maybe not what was actually paid, but the value of what they received through the agreement?

GMP President: You know, it is still confusing. I do believe that they paid a total of $151,875, but the license does have a value of $130,000, which means, then, that you'd have to look at the difference of the technical work, if you will, back for the Double Corporate Level 25, would simply be $21,875. We can look at this. I know you guys aren't familiar with this, but let's look at this and see. On the level 25, if you look at page ... Please turn to page 13. At the top of the page, about the middle of the first paragraph, level 25 is $10,000. Do you see that?

Helen Eisner: Yes.

GMP President: There's two of those, so that's $20,000, and then there's a content cost in addition to that, which would have brought the price up to the $21,875. Although it's not reflective here, super clear, the value of the work for Digital Canal was $21,875.

Helen Eisner: That was the value of the work for Digital Canal, specifically.

GMP President: And Digital Canal Structural, split 50/50.
Helen Eisner: The remaining portion, if you subtract the $21,875 from the $151,875, you're getting the $130,000, which is the license and training, or which is the software license.

GMP President: I would say that's fair, yes.

Helen Eisner: Were there other reductions, the non-refundable deposit, that were made because of the nature of the agreement?

GMP President: I don't recall. I believe that they just made two fairly substantial payments. It seems like we got $65,000, and it seems like we got $86,875.

Helen Eisner: Understood, and those were the two payments that were made that then totaled $151,875.

GMP President: Right.

Helen Eisner: Again, those are the payments that you talked about earlier that were made from Digital Canal.

GMP President: Correct.

Helen Eisner: Looking at this page 12, 0012, there are some upgrades that are listed, and on the next page, there's a discussion of ongoing costs. Were there any additional upgrades or ongoing costs that Tin Moon accrued?

GMP President: Not as of this time, no.

Helen Eisner: The only payments that had been made related to Tin Moon reflect that $151,875, the $130,000 portion.

GMP President: That would not be accurate. We have added some new pages recently for Digital Canal and Digital Canal Structural. There's actually going to be a third website. I think it's Digital Canal Estimating, I think, and Ed did visit, not with me on that, but with Matt in our office, about that. I think we have charged them, Digital Canal, we have charged them a few thousand dollars for that work.

Helen Eisner: Those were some additional charges for Digital Canal. What about for Tin Moon?

GMP President: No.

Helen Eisner: No.
GMP President: None. No upgrades and no ongoing cost stuff, no. Just strictly with Digital Canal changes.

Helen Eisner: Do you know why Digital Canal paid on behalf of Tin Moon?

GMP President: No.

Helen Eisner: One of the products in the list of seven products on page 11, and it's the last product, page seven, is, "Build template-based site for Tin Moon, optimized for 95 to 100% for Iowa, Illinois, and Wisconsin." What was the process as far as working with Tin Moon to build out their website?

GMP President: What we described early on in the conversation, you'd asked about was it a template site, that kind of thing, we would have shared with them for them to go take a look at elegantthemes.com and pick a template, tell us what colors they want, blues or reds or greens, whatever color they want, and then we would build a basic site with very similar services that we offer at Get Me Placement, and that would be their starter website, if you will.

Helen Eisner: Who were you working with from Tin Moon?

GMP President: Ed.

Helen Eisner: Ed. You had provided me, and thank you for this, a copy, an original screenshot, of Tin Moon's website, which I believe is from July 2016.

GMP President: Correct.

Helen Eisner: That is what the file is saved as.

Helen Eisner: Was this a screenshot that you had saved for your files, or where did this come from?

GMP President: Yes, thank you. Yes, it was saved, and we also have ... Our head tech saves these in case somebody accidentally overrides their website, so we have this in its original state. Sorry. Whatever site, whether it's an affiliate site or an end user client site, or whatever, we'll save those. We still have this.

Helen Eisner: What we're looking at from July 2016, is this reflective of a template that Get Me Placement would have built?
GMP President: Yes, it is.

Helen Eisner: Yes. In this template, towards the bottom there, is a video box. You can't see any image from the video there, but at the top, it says, "John Ferland, on behalf of Digital Canal."

GMP President: That's that guy I don't know who it is. They must have provided that. That is not something that we would provide. When we ask for logos and pictures and things like that, they must have sent that to us for us to put on their site. I don't know who that person is. I really don't. I don't know if he works there, or if he works somewhere else. I haven't even watched the video. I don't know who it is or what it is, but they provided that to us, so it is not a standard template item.

Helen Eisner: What conversations were there about including this video on the website?

GMP President: None that I recall. It would have likely been a conversation with someone that works here, at the company, because I don't have any recollection of ever talking about a video, or this John Ferland, I guess is how you pronounce his last name. I had zero involvement in this piece. They would have sent it to someone that works here. Until I saw that, I didn't know that it was even there.

Helen Eisner: Here's a copy of the current website, and this is from the Tin Moon's ... And we're moving through quickly. We don't have too much more to go. This is the Tin Moon's Success Stories page for their current website. You can see that there's a list of five success stories, I guess, to the left, with different names. Where did this information come from?

GMP President: That came from the training manual that we provided them.

Helen Eisner: You provided to Tin Moon?

GMP President: To Tin Moon.

Helen Eisner: Did they place this information on the website, or is that something that Get Me Placement included in the website?

GMP President: I believe they put that on here.

Helen Eisner: What was your knowledge of them using this information?

GMP President: I was not aware of it. I mean, they had the information, like the graphic over on the right. That's in the training manual as well, but I had no knowledge or any information prior to them doing this.
Helen Eisner: What is this graphic on the right?

GMP President: The graphic on the right describes the difference ... Well, there looks like one graphic, but it's actually two. The first top graphic describes the difference between an organic visitor to your website and a paid traffic visitor, and it describes that the organic visitor stays on the site. The first column is, "They view over twice as many pages," the middle column is, "The organic visitor to your site is going to stay over three times longer, and their propensity to immediately bounce off your website is some 35% less." It's part of our value proposition, that we're not only going to bring more traffic to you, but it's better traffic.

Helen Eisner: Go ahead.

GMP President: Sorry. The bottom part describes a client of ours, of Get Me Placement's, that, "They also participate in PPC," which stands for pay-per-click, which is the ads at the top, and then they also are paying us $3,000 per month, and then over, as you move from left to right, it describes what they are paying per click for their cost through the ads, is $2.21, and their cost per click through our program is 11 cents a click, and then how many clicks or hits did they get to their website for that $3,000, pretty much dollar for dollar spend, they got 1,363 from their paid ads, and they got 27,000 plus on the organic.

Helen Eisner: Has this graphic been edited from the one that is in the manual at all?

GMP President: I don't believe so, no. I think it's exactly what's in the manual.

Helen Eisner: The portion, just the left bottom corner where it says, "TML charges."

GMP President: Oh. That has been edited. You're right, because that would not be in there.

Helen Eisner: What is TML? Is that Tin Moon Labs?

GMP President: That would be Tin Moon Labs. Yeah, it sure has. Good eye. I missed that.

Helen Eisner: Is this accurate information about Tin Moon Labs?

GMP President: I would say it is not accurate. I would say that it could be representative of that, but that is not a Tin Moon client. That is a Get Me Placement client. That's a good eye. I did not see that, but that's ... I don't like that, personally. This is totally out of nowhere, but I do have a high regard for Ed Graham. I think he's a real gentleman, but some of the things that they had done with this ... And I know you said we're almost finished, but the reputation management thing, totally out of line. Totally out of line. Don't know where it came from. We didn't have anything to do with it.

Yes, we do reputation management, and we help people with things that are, "I got a false rip-off report," kind of thing. You can read all about that on our website. We helped that company, and it turned out to be a disgruntled employee. The CTO thing, the FDA thing that they did, this, I think, is not accurate, in my opinion. Again, I think Ed is a really nice guy, and in my conversation with him, I told him I felt like that Monty had kind of taken the ball and literally run with it on some of these things. I think that's misrepresentative. I just do. Again, it hurts me to say that, but it's the truth.

Helen Eisner: What about your reaction to the use of these quotes?

GMP President: I think that it would be representative of this. Overall, Helen, I don't mind it, but what I would have preferred to see is that some type of identifier. I hate to use the word disclaimer, but maybe that's a decent word. Up here, it should say that, "This is representative of work from our tech team." Just be honest.

Helen Eisner: From the Get Me Placement?

GMP President: Don't mislead people thinking that this is what TML is getting from this prospective client or whatever. I just think that's misleading.

Paul Solis: When you say tech team, do you mean Get Me Placement?

GMP President: Us, yes.

Helen Eisner: Get Me Placement.

GMP President: Yes. "These are short testimonials from work that our tech team has performed." Something like that.

Helen Eisner: There's one quote, the Kristen W. quote, the third one down, that says, "Our pay pre click campaign spend was nearly 200,000, which made the switch to Tin Moon worth it by itself, but our traffic has increased at the same time." The word Tin Moon is used there.

GMP President: Yeah. I'm not aware of that testimonial. I don't know of a Kristen. I know of a Jeff and all of those, but I don't know of Kristen. That may be theirs. I don't know.
Helen Eisner: There's a book that you just grabbed. If you could describe to us what you're-GMP President: It's our training manual. I'm going to look and see. I think we've got those on our website as well. We don't go over these typically in training, so let me look and see if I can locate those. We can also pull up our website and see. I don't know who Kristen is. I know these other people, so that may be theirs.

Paul Solis: The other four you know?

GMP President: I do know Janie, and Jeff, and Gib, and Robert. I know all those people.

Paul Solis: Are they clients of Tin Moon?

Helen Eisner: Or affiliates?

GMP President: No, no, no. They're clients of ours. They are our clients. Here's this one graphic of the top, in the book.

Helen Eisner: And that is the identical graphic for the top portion, starting with 3.24, Organic Traffic.

GMP President: You're right. It has not been altered.

Helen Eisner: I'm just making sure for the recording that we have some description of that.

GMP President: What we're looking at, yeah. In our training manual, we don't have those. Those must be on our website. I would look. I don't know who Kristen is, but I know those other people, and I probably have their phone numbers in my phone, but I don't know who Kristen is. I'd have to say that that's theirs.

Helen Eisner: Let me ask you another question, show you another document. This is a website from a company called Web Edge Digital Marketing. Does Get Me Placement have a relationship with this company?

GMP President: We do, yes.

Helen Eisner: From this website, there's, again, a Success Stories tab-GMP President: There's Kristen again.

Helen Eisner: ... similar to the Tin Moon Success Stories tab that lists quotes from some of these identical individuals, including the Kristen W. quote. The quote appears almost identical, except there's the insertion-

GMP President: They changed their name.

Helen Eisner: ... to Web Edge, so it uses that company's name.

GMP President: Yeah. I don't know who Kristen is. Perhaps I've forgotten who Kristen was, but I'm going to find out real soon.

Helen Eisner: None of these quotes, and just correct me if I'm wrong, are part of the template provided by Get Me Placement, is that correct?

GMP President: That's correct.

Helen Eisner: This would have been the individual affiliate or company deciding to include this content on their website?

GMP President: Yes, because I don't know that anybody else has used this that I recall. Maybe there is. I don't know. I know it's not part of the template.

Paul Solis: The second page of Web Edge.

GMP President: Of this one? Oh, they're using it too?

Helen Eisner: You can see that it's the identical chart, and towards the bottom left-hand corner for Web Edge, corner, they have changed the name to Web Edge monthly charge.

GMP President: And they have done the same thing on Web Edge monthly charge. Yeah, I'm not okay with that.

Paul Solis: Again, these are both represented in your training manual.

GMP President: They're not. I'm sorry, these are, yes sir.

Helen Eisner: The chart portion.

GMP President: I just showed them to you.

Paul Solis: Not the client quotes, but the-

Helen Eisner: The chart portion.
Paul Solis: ... the chart portion.

GMP President: These two chart portions are both in here, and we give our affiliates a digital copy of the manual, and they could have taken that out of there. What I'm concerned about-

Paul Solis: The intent there is for them to develop their own figures, correct? Not to-

GMP President: Yeah, here's this one here.

Helen Eisner: Which is that top chart portion starting with 3.24.

GMP President: Correct, and then the other one is ... Under expect ... No, it wasn't under Expectations. It was under Our Stories. Yeah, you can see, it says GMP.

Helen Eisner: GMP is in the manual, as in Get Me Placement.

GMP President: Yes, and so they've taken it and changed it, but I am fearful that someone went, Greg Simmons, has looked at ... Because this can and will happen. Someone says, "Can I look at a couple of other affiliates' websites and see which ones I like, because I'm really at a loss here. My creativity just doesn't exist, so can I look at a couple of other affiliates?" I think they may have said, and this is an educated guess, "I like the one for Tin Moon," because he came along after they did, but I'm not okay with that.

Helen Eisner: Who is Greg Simmons?

GMP President: He's Web Edge, and he's in Florida. I'm going to ask who Kristen is. Have y'all looked at our website for these?

Helen Eisner: We have.

GMP President: I'm sure you have, and do you see these on our website?

Helen Eisner: There appear to be-

GMP President: Is there a Kristen W. on there?

Helen Eisner: That I can't tell you off the top of my head. I know that some of the quotes that appear there are on your website. I'm not sure that the Kristen W. one is there.

GMP President: Man, I don't know who that is. Like I said, I mean, I could have forgotten, but I have a decent memory. I just don't know who that is. That's a lot of money. $200,000 on a pay-per-click campaign. I think I would remember that.

Helen Eisner: That's not a quote that you've seen before.

GMP President: No, I don't recall seeing that, and again, I don't know who Kristen is, and it's troublesome that people are using that and then putting their name to it as if it was their client that did that. Again, I would want to see ahead of those some indication that, "Our tech team, this is the result of our tech team that we've partnered with," that kind of thing.

Helen Eisner: To the extent that Tin Moon does have at least a few clients that you are aware of, are you aware, or what knowledge do you have of Kristen W. being any of those clients that you've mentioned for Tin Moon?

GMP President: No knowledge, whether she is a client or is not. I'm not sure.

Helen Eisner: Additionally ... I'll give you a moment.

GMP President: That's okay. I'm listening. I'm just going to write down Kristen W. and find out if we can find out who that is. It may be their client, but I don't think it's ... It's just not someone that I recall.

Helen Eisner: There's one other Tin Moon web page that I want to show you. This is their About Us section. I think you mentioned this before. What I want to draw your attention towards is the logos at the bottom. Inc. 500, Fast Company, Softletter. There are a number of logos. What are those logos?

GMP President: No knowledge of it at all. It's not something that we are affiliated with, and it's something that they have simply added on their own. I don't even know. I mean, Inc. 500, but I'm not sure what that award is that they're showing. I don't even know who these companies are, Fast Company and Softletter. I don't know who they are or what they do. Again, that's not part of the template.

Helen Eisner: You had provided me with an email, and I'm just going to give you a copy of that. This is TM_0001 through 0003. This is an email chain between yourself, and it says egraham@. Can I assume that's Ed Graham?

GMP President: Yes.

Helen Eisner: Okay. On the last page, the third page, which is the first email in the chain, there's a back and forth, I think, that Ed Graham sent you an email, and towards the end of the email, he says, "The team is kicking in our Tin Moon optimization next week, so that's exciting." What does that mean?

GMP President: As I recall, we made some changes to their optimization about what the focus was. The original focus identified in the agreement was an overall focus of Iowa, Illinois, and Wisconsin, and I think it was altered to have a different focus, geographically, around Dubuque and maybe another area or two. I'd have to look at the site to be able to see exactly what, look under the hood, so to speak, but that's what that's referring to.

Helen Eisner: So, "Kicking in the Tin Moon optimization," refers to changing the geographic focus.

GMP President: Correct.

Helen Eisner: He says, "The team is kicking in." Do you know what he means by the team, or who he means?

GMP President: I would assume that he meant the GMP team.

Helen Eisner: That would be the GMP Get Me Placement team.

GMP President: Correct, that we would be making those changes next week, so that's exciting.

Helen Eisner: Do you know why he wanted those changes to be made?

GMP President: As I recall, it was for local relevance for Monty's request to have better placement for their own website.

Helen Eisner: There's back and forth here about scheduling a phone call. Did that phone call eventually happen?

GMP President: It did.

Helen Eisner: Was that the February 26th phone call that you referred to earlier?

GMP President: It is.

Helen Eisner: What did you discuss during that phone call?

GMP President: We discussed the Tin Moon website, the title of the Chief Technology Officer, and what that implied, that I wasn't comfortable with it. We also talked about the horrible things that this blog lady was saying about how the company was, and I, "[GMP President] is a scam," and that kind of thing. We also talked about the Google-certified partner was wrong, and that it needed to be removed, and it was removed.

Helen Eisner: It sounds like Mr. Graham was the one who set up the phone call. Was there something that he wanted to discuss with you? Anything related to the business?

GMP President: I think he also wanted to talk about, I guess, what had transpired about the lady that was blogging, and that kind of thing. Of course, I was already aware of it. I had gotten a phone call from the Associated Press, and I was already aware of what was going on, but I think he just wanted to, I guess, let me hear it from him, I guess, if you will.

Helen Eisner: Who was the lady that was blogging?

GMP President: I don't know her name. She had horrible things to say. Untruthful things. I almost said it. Bleeding Heartland, I think, is her site or her blog.

Helen Eisner: You discussed that blog, and also, you said, the Associated Press article.

GMP President: Yes, not necessarily the article in any kind of detail, just that the Associated Press has called.

Helen Eisner: What did Mr. Graham say about that?

GMP President: Not too different than what he put here, that it's just a bunch of crap, and that ... I don't remember if it was from the phone call or not, but just what was going on, and that Tin Moon didn't have any clients in 2016, and that Rod felt like that was the reason why it had no business, it had no clients, and that that's why he did not report it when he ... I don't know if he ran for reelection or what. I don't know of those details, but that Tin Moon didn't have any clients, and I think I confirmed that was my recollection, that Tin Moon didn't have any clients in 2016. They didn't start selling until April time frame of 2017.

Helen Eisner: During that phone call, what did Ed Graham say about that video that appeared on their website, the one involving John Ferland?

GMP President: Nothing that I recall. Nothing about it at all.

Helen Eisner: What about a photograph of Rod Blum that was on the website? What did Mr. Graham say about that?

GMP President: He did say something about that, and before I forget, we also talked about ... Dang it. Something else, too. Hold on. But about the photo. He said something about that whomever it was, was complaining about the congressional pin that he was wearing, and he said, "I don't know how anybody could even tell what that was." He did say that. There was something else. I almost said it, too, but I didn't want to interrupt you. I should have and then apologized for it. I'm trying to remember what it was. Something that was going on. I'm sorry. Maybe it'll hit me again in a minute.

Helen Eisner: Okay. Going back to that photograph where the Congressman was wearing the pin, did he say what his role was in using that photograph?

GMP President: No.

Helen Eisner: What did he say about Congressman Blum's reaction to the coverage?

GMP President: I don't recall, other than maybe just an overall, nothing specific, just overall displeasure, I guess, about the things that were being said.

Helen Eisner: You mentioned that the company didn't have clients in 2016. What about in 2017? We've talked about the clients. What was your knowledge of the type of revenue that the company was generating?

GMP President: In comparison to other people, I would say it was really low, for other people that had started around the same time frame they did, that kind of thing. I mean, again, I could look, but to guess or to try to recall on an annual basis, maybe $50,000, maybe 80,000, starting in the April time frame.

Helen Eisner: During that phone call, did Ed Graham talk about the types of investments that the Congressman had made in the company?

GMP President: If he did, I don't recall any specifics. You know, let me ... Can we pause that just a second?

Helen Eisner: We can. I'm just going to pause the recording.

GMP President: Yeah-

Helen Eisner: Okay. Speaking is Helen Eisner, we are here in review 18-2049, with [GMP President]. And, he has a phone recording from February 26, 2018, between himself and Mr. Ed Graham that was recorded and we are going to place the recorder next to the computer, so that we can listen to that recording.

GMP President: I think it's ... Hold on, I think I started it.
Helen Eisner: Okay, and we have the recording and it will begin now.

GMP President: Then, we won't have to be wondering what we did or did not say.

Phone Recording Begins

Phone Operator: The operator.

Automated Phone: For technical support, you are being transferred to the operator.

Phone Operator: Good morning, Digital Canal?

GMP President: Good morning, this is [GMP President], is Ed in?

Phone Operator: Yes, he is, one moment, sir.

GMP President: Thank you. Yeah, when the automated attendant did.

Phone Operator: Pardon me, [GMP President]?

GMP President: Yes.

Phone Operator: Alright, he's stepped away from his desk, care if I put you on hold for just a moment, please?

GMP President: Sure, that's fine, thank you.

Phone Operator: Thank you.

Alright, [GMP President], I'll connect you, one moment, please.

GMP President: Thank you.

Ed Graham: Good morning.

GMP President: Good morning, sir how are you?

Ed Graham: Oh, I've been better, how are you?

GMP President: I guess I could probably say the same.

Ed Graham: Yeah?

GMP President: Yeah, I keep getting calls from affiliates that this Bleeding Heartland bitch is talking to. She's hitting people up as late as Friday night.
Ed Graham: Really?

GMP President: Yeah.

Ed Graham: I just got a call this morning.

GMP President: You what?

Ed Graham: And, I got a call this morning from them.

GMP President: Oh.

Ed Graham: Obviously, not taking them. Wow.

GMP President: Well ...

Ed Graham: Personal destruction [GMP President], I'll tell you, it's ridiculous.

GMP President: I know. Well, I wanted to chat about a couple of things, and that I understand and, for the large part, support, at least from y'all's end, no comment kind of thing. Well, because whatever you say, could be twisted.

Ed Graham: Totally agree, yep. Not could be, it is being ...

GMP President: Right. But, in reading her latest article from Friday, that she thinks that this whole [GMP President] link thing is likely a scam and now she's going to turn her attention away from the fact that Rod did or did not report that he was an owner of ... And, if this was in '16, I mean, you know better than I, y'all didn't have any clients in '16.

Ed Graham: I know, that's what Rod said. It was nonfunctioning.

GMP President: Right. That's right. So, I'm wondering if it's not only going to help clarify our situation, but also try to get my neck out of the news, is if I do speak with someone. Now, I think I'd rather speak with the Associated Press as opposed to just this crazy blog lady, that's stirring the pot.

Ed Graham: Yeah.

GMP President: But, I wanted to chat with you about that first and also wanted to chat about my two titles on your website. The first one would indicate, at least, in my opinion, that I have some ... Potentially, it doesn't state it exactly, but at a quick glance you might think that I am a corporate officer of your company, which of course, I'm not. And, I'm wondering about ...

Ed Graham: Yeah, I mean, there's Chief Technology Officer up there.

GMP President: Right, about ... Leading Director of SEO because that's a common thing that people have put on other websites. And, I don't know if you've seen her latest article, or not.

Ed Graham: No.

GMP President: Yeah, and I hadn't either just until this morning, but another affiliate that took quite a bit of time visiting with this lady ... And, of course, everyone has had, just as I'm sure you would if this had not come up, if somebody had called and said, "What has your experience been with [GMP President] and the folks at GMP?" Well, there's no hesitation in my mind, that you would say that it's been a good experience.

Ed Graham: Oh, my God, [GMP President], you know I have tremendous respect for you.

GMP President: Right, right and I appreciate that and just like I do for you, as well.

Ed Graham: Thank you.

GMP President: We've laughed and joked about this before, we're a couple of dinosaurs in our ...field.

Ed Graham: It's true.

GMP President: Yeah, we really know and care about each other and our clients and that kind of thing. So, I'm wondering if that is maybe misleading and also maybe if something doesn't need to be mentioned on the site about the ... Her biggest hang-up is, if everybody uses the same testimonials. When, of course, everybody is telling her, well, we don't have our own tech team, we use the [GMP President] Firm, as she keeps referring it to, and Get Me Placement to do the technical work. If maybe something that clarified that on the website would better serve these naysayers that are trying to look ill upon that your company is some kind of a scam.

Ed Graham: Yeah, okay. I'll certainly entertain that.

GMP President: That there's an affiliate relationship where you've partnered with us, to do the technical work and therefore, your tech team, and this is how I've always described it, that when Monty is on the phone with someone, my tech team has been doing this for 20 years.

Ed Graham: Yeah.

GMP President: They're very likely the best in the business.

Ed Graham: Yeah. And, you know, when we're on sales calls when we were early and I would go at Monty because a couple of the people, [GMP President], we were talking to, you know, were our age and I would tell them, I would say, "In my humble opinion and my own words for this, I would say it's a franchise, except it's not."

GMP President: Right, sure, yeah.

Ed Graham: And, that's perfectly legal and everything and they get it when you say it that way. So, guess what, McDonalds has 100,000 clients in Dubuque. They got 100,000,000 in Iowa.

GMP President: Yeah.

Ed Graham: So, it just pisses me off to no end and you, too, I know.

GMP President: Yeah, I mean, I hate it for you, of course, primarily, but, of course ... Ed Graham: Right.

GMP President: And, I don't mind a little bit of attention, but I just don't want it to have a negative impact on either one of us. But of course, you know, selfishly, I sure don't want it to have a negative impact on us and so, I'm just ...

Ed Graham: No way.

GMP President: Yeah.

Ed Graham: I agree.

GMP President: But, I'm just wondering ... And, not for an immediate answer, but think about it and let me know, about what you feel like what's in bounds and what's out of bounds, if I were to reach out, return that phone call that was left and see if I can't at least explain our situation, they hear it from me.

Ed Graham: Yeah.
GMP President: And, that part of it about scam and all that kind of stuff, just gets dropped. And then, let's focus on the meat of the matter, that Rod did not disclose a nonfunctioning business in 2016.

Ed Graham: Yeah. It's ugly and the other thing was, you know, I'm sitting here in Iowa, a high school grad career business guy, not politics, so I googled Rod. If you google Rod, right now, the first thing that'll come up is the picture I have up there. You can't tell that's a freaking Congressional pin.

GMP President: Yeah. I saw that, yeah, I mean, they're just really stretching.

Ed Graham: Oh, my Lord, [GMP President], it's insane. So, anyway, and then the piece for, whatever you call it, the Google Adword thing or whatever, I owe you an apology there because I was going to call you a few months back when I did that. Because, I saw it actually on another affiliate site and then, of course, when Kristen told me you called, I thought, "Oh, my God, I never did call him," just getting busy. And, it was probably the affiliate that was, that had Adwords about us, obviously.

GMP President: Right, right, there is one, he's the guy in Maryland.

Ed Graham: Maryland, okay.

GMP President: Yeah, he's gone through ... And, I took both of the tests, but the next thing that was required was for me to spend $10,000 on Adwords, seriously. And, that was never disclosed until after I'd passed those tests and I'm not allowed to display that because I haven't spent $10,000 with them yet. And, I'm just ... I mean, it just made me mad. I mean, that's like extortion, so ...

Ed Graham: I totally agree.

GMP President: Yeah, so I decided you’re moving the goal post in the middle of the game, I'm out.

Ed Graham: I totally agree. Did they ask you or try to ask you about our FDA letter?

GMP President: No, I mean, I didn't get that because I didn't ever speak with anyone. I mean ...

Ed Graham: They're twisting it from a perspective of what we did was we just did a ... The guy downstairs, you know, Steve Miller?
GMP President: Yeah.

Ed Graham: Our website guy? He's got some clients that he's giving us obviously, for SEO, as you know. And, he was thinking about potential target being FDA letter, people that have received it. So, we sent him a letter saying, "Hey, you know you're on page one bad of Google and all that, we can get you off." So, the AP takes that and twists it to we're a scam and all of that sort of stuff. You know, I told Monty, I said, "We’ll use [GMP President] if they're not Steve's clients."

GMP President: Right.

Ed Graham: Because, we've talked to Matt before about reputation management, that's why we put it in here.

GMP President: Sure. And, I totally agree with having that on there, but I think the way some of the wording is, that it's not maybe a clear understanding. It's basically like we're going to bury it, without saying that ... And, it did mention that there's positive information on there, but it also said ... And, these people really had to dig, I think, to find that because that's not even on your site map ...

Ed Graham: No.

GMP President: ... Anywhere, but it says, it makes a claim that only we know how to do this, and that just raises people's eyebrows. That was something else I was going to mention, that that, I think, could be word smithed to be more clear. Maybe the FDA, if you wanted to use that as an example, it could be, but it's also ... I mean, you've already got the example of the company that was really getting hurt by $300,000 a week, but ...

Ed Graham: Yeah.

GMP President: That's on there as well. But, I think a better explanation of reputation management, do you have negative information and it mentions this, but just a few more sentences, I think, would be helpful and then maybe take off the part that only we know how to do this. Indicates like that we've discovered some secret and that we're pulling something that's potentially a scam or illegal or something that nobody else knows how to do, it just gives the wrong impression, in my opinion.

Ed Graham: Hm. Okay. Well, at least you know ... You've known me forever, I would not do anything I didn't think was right.
1  GMP President:  Right, right, I agree. And, it just, it seems a little bit more aggressive, I guess.

3  Ed Graham:    Yeah.

4  GMP President:  And, I'm not pointing a finger, but it sounds like something that maybe Monty would say, trying to sell somebody, you know? And, you hear me laughing, I mean, when “nobody knows how to do this but us and we're the best at it”, and that kind of thing. And, that sounds like it's a sales tactic, one of his tools in his tool belt, but I think certainly with all these eyes on it, it would be better if it was a little more, less aggressive, if you will.

11  Ed Graham:    Okay. Yeah, that's cool and I'll keep that and the letter and ...

12  GMP President:  Okay. And then, I think there's also maybe a mention of a guarantee on the reputation management, which we don't do. Because, we don't know how many sites it's going to take and all that and that's the other thing and again, it sounds like this was something, again, I'm not pointing fingers, but it sounds like something that Monty had put together because it sounds like that ... And, you guys were doing this entirely on your own, it's not a policy that we have in place, but you pay some initial fee and then you don't pay until it's on page two?

20  Ed Graham:    Yes.

21  GMP President:  Yeah. And, it's your business, obviously, you can do whatever you want to, but that's just not how we do it.

23  Ed Graham:    Yeah, okay.

24  GMP President:  Nor do we guarantee that they'll be on the second page, this negative information. So ...

26  Ed Graham:    Yeah, because we were literally, Muller said that he would try one of these and what the theory was, [GMP President], just so you understand, was they wouldn't pay us other than a small setup fee, couple hundred bucks. And so, literally, they had zero risk.

30  GMP President:  Right, gotcha.

31  Ed Graham:    Just so you're aware, you know, if they ask her or whatever.

32  GMP President:  Yeah, okay.
Ed Graham: It just makes me insane because it's all nefarious and Graham's a piece of shit and the guy's a crook and I've got children here for Christ's sakes and it's sad.

GMP President: Yeah, it is. Yeah, for sure. Well, I guess, give those things some thought and just let me know what your thoughts are, again, what's ... And, I don't have to call them, but I just thought if we can limit the conversation ... I mean, if it continues then I think I'm going to have to say something, but because this lady just keeps reaching out, she's reached out to four affiliates already.

Ed Graham: Really.

GMP President: Yeah, and of course, they've all said something wonderful about us.

Ed Graham: Yeah, that's awesome.

GMP President: Which, I would expect, but still, I mean, it's like she's just not going to stop until she can prove that she's, the, shit, the next Watergate investigative reporter or something.

Ed Graham: Yeah.

GMP President: She's going to uncover something here and then she's going to maybe get hired by the Associated Press or something, you know, who knows.

Ed Graham: Yeah, you're probably right, yeah she's ... With Rod's situation, the whole thing came because of that filing, like you said, otherwise none of this would matter. But, anyway, the filing, if what you have in the business is worth $1,000 or less, you don't even have to do it. Well, he put in $700 and I put in $300.

GMP President: Right.

Ed Graham: So, it wasn't necessarily even required, but it's not, at 2016, like you said, we hadn't even had a sale, so it's not even an operating entity, no taxes or nothing.

GMP President: Right.

Ed Graham: And, that's what started it all and then they started digging. What's interesting, is some lefty must have gotten the FDA letter. Do they mention in the articles in the papers here in Iowa, including our home town here, that we guarantee it, they don't have to pay us until it happens, any of that? Hell no, it just looks like we're crooks.

GMP President: Right, right, exactly. Well, if there's something that you would like for me to confirm, like that you guys didn't have any clients in 2016, I'd be happy to. I mean, it's the truth.

Ed Graham: Yeah, it's the truth. The truth always works.

GMP President: Yeah. You can't beat the truth, you never have to remember what you said.

Ed Graham: Yeah, I remember you and I laughing about that a while ago.

GMP President: Yeah, exactly. So, if there's something you want me to say like that, I'd be happy to and see if we can't turn the heat down just a little bit.

Ed Graham: Yeah, and that would help explain the how in the hell can you be in business only a year and have 11,000 clients and all of that.

GMP President: Exactly. Yeah, the words and with you guys disclosing on your website about your experience and just say, our tech team.

Ed Graham: Yeah, okay.

GMP President: Just those few words, our tech team has this experience or whatever and I think that would go a long way.

Ed Graham: Okay, I can do that, easy enough. Okay, let me think about it, maybe I'll see if I can get a conversation with Rod here or something today.

GMP President: Okay.

Ed Graham: I know he's back in D.C. but [GMP President], I appreciate your reaching out and I sincerely appreciate your backing on this because ...

GMP President: Yeah, absolutely, yeah, I'm not saying take me off your website, my God. No, I'm not bailing on you, I just want to help it go away as much as we can.

Ed Graham: Yeah, I appreciate that.

GMP President: So, okay.

Ed Graham: Appreciate it very much, thanks for calling.
GMP President: You're welcome, alright, talk to you soon, thanks.

Ed Graham: Okay, bye bye.

GMP President: Alright, bye.

Phone Recording Ends

Helen Eisner: We're going to go ahead and stop the recording of the phone conversation.

Ed Graham: Okay. This is Helen Eisner. Back on the record with [GMP President]. On May 22nd, 2018. We just took a moment to listen to a phone recording and now I just want to ask you a few more questions.

Paul Solis: And also just to clarify for the record in case we didn't make it clear prior to the phone recording, that was a phone call between [GMP President] and Ed Graham on February 26th, 2017.

GMP President: 2018.

Helen Eisner: Okay. Since then, have you had any further communication with Ed Graham?

GMP President: Yes. But, not about that subject. Just about Tin Moon, a troublesome client and Digital Canal getting a new website for, I think, Canal and Structural and Digital Canal Estimating, I think is the third site now. In taking some of their optimized pages and splitting them up between those three websites, we've had those type of conversations. Not about this subject matter.

Helen Eisner: Have you had any types of communications about the content of the website that you discussed during that phone call and changes that should be made to the website?

GMP President: Not since this phone call. No, Ma'am.

Helen Eisner: Okay. What about any conversations or communications with Monty Alexander?

GMP President: No. Not about the website or ... I haven't directly had any contact with Monty at all. I think y'all had a date in your RFI. I have not had any contact with him about anything.
Helen Eisner: Have you been in contact with anyone else besides Tin Moon employees like the media or anyone else about some of the media coverage of Congressman Blum and the allegations that were in that coverage?

GMP President: I would say no. I haven't spoken to anyone. You mentioned the word employees. I have not spoken with anyone else there at Digital Canal or Tin Moon. I did not return the phone call from that lady that was saying those horrible things about us. I did not return the Associated Press phone call.

Helen Eisner: Okay. Has anyone reached out to you to discuss this Office of Congressional Ethics Investigation?

GMP President: No.

Helen Eisner: Okay. And who have you communicated with about the investigation?

GMP President: Just Justin, my son, who works here and Cassie that you met this morning. I don't think anyone else.

Helen Eisner: Okay. Do you have any other questions?

Okay. I'm going to go ahead and stop the recording.

Okay. This is Helen Eisner, again, back on the record with [GMP President]. May 22nd, 2018. Just want to clarify one additional question for you. What conversations have you had with any individuals about the Office of Congressional Ethics Review?

GMP President: The only conversations I have had have been with Ed Graham at Digital Canal/Tin Moon. I've discussed it with Cassie Feo here at GMP and Justin McCally here at GMP.

Ed and I discussed specifically about your office, Helen and Paul. We had a conversation. We were talking about a Tin Moon troublesome client. It came up in a telephone conversation that we had received correspondence from your office requesting information and that we had both received the information on the same date and that we were both going to respond and that's all that was mentioned.

Helen Eisner: Okay. Did Mr. Graham say anything else about what was included in the request for information to him?

GMP President: He did not.
Helen Eisner: Okay. Did he say anything else about the Office of Congressional Ethics Investigation?

GMP President: He did not. Just that he was going to respond or that he had already responded at the time we spoke. I believe that my best recollection is that he said he had already responded.

Helen Eisner: What did he say about whether or not you should respond to the request for information?

GMP President: I don't think he did say. But I told him I was going to. I don't think he offered any advice or opinion about that at all. Just that I was going to respond and that's it. We didn't discuss any details. “What are you or are you not providing?” We didn't go into any of those details at all. Just the acknowledgement that it was received on the same date by both of us. Again, I believe that he said that he had maybe already responded. That's my recollection.

Other than that, no details. The majority of the conversation, vast majority of the conversation was about this troublesome client of theirs.

Helen Eisner: Okay. Then from that point forward, have you had any communications with Ed Graham about the Office of Congressional Ethics Investigation?

GMP President: None whatsoever.

Helen Eisner: Okay. And with anyone else besides Get Me Placement employees?

GMP President: No. No one.

Helen Eisner: Okay. All right. Is there anything else that you think we should know?

The Honorable Susan Brooks, Chair
The Honorable Ted Deutch, Ranking Member
House Committee on Ethics
1015 Longworth House Office Building
Washington, DC 20515

Dear Chairwoman Brooks and Ranking Member Deutch:

Please accept this letter as my formal submission of a self-report to the Committee to review certain allegations made against me regarding compliance with the Rules of the House. The allegations are contained in an AP news article dated February 22, 2018. In short, the 2016 Financial Disclosure concerns were simply an oversight (which have since been corrected/amended), and the Tin Moon Corporation concerns occurred without my knowledge or consent and have since been removed (with instructions not to occur again.) I take my obligations to follow the letter and the spirit of the Rules of the House very seriously, and I am dismayed that my opponents would politicize the Committee's process over a $700 passive investment in a company from which I earn no income and have no say over its operations.

On February 21, 2018, I previously informally reported the AP article and the concerns raised in it to Committee staff, which was as soon as I became aware of the article. My Chief of Staff John Ferland met with Senior Counsel Tamar Nedzar, and he provided her with the AP article. Ms. Nedzar, after reviewing the article with her staff colleagues, recommended submitting a self-report to the Committee. Since that time, I immediately took the following corrective actions (as more detailed below): 1) filed immediately an amendment to my 2016 Financial Disclosure on February 21, 2018, correcting the oversights regarding Tin Moon Corporation; 2) demanded immediately Tin Moon Corporation remove my official photo (and any photo) and any reference to me from its website and any other materials; 3) demanded immediately Tin Moon Corporation remove the testimonial video featuring my Chief of Staff; 4) looked into other potential practices/operations Tin Moon Corporation may have engaged in using my name or likeness without my consent; and 5) retained legal counsel to assist with this formal self-report submission and to provide continuing House Rules compliance guidance.

1 The article is found at: https://apnews.com/4e5279337ba934c87af7c7177caed5c10
2 See Attachment A.
going forward. After my first report to Committee staff on February 21, 2018, and during my preparation to file this a noted previously, I received a letter on March 7, 2018, from the Office of Congressional Ethics stating the Board opened a preliminary review of these matters.

Below is a detailed account of the concerns at issue:

ITEM 1: Failed to list Tin Moon Corporation on my 2016 Financial Disclosure.
RESPONSE: That is correct, and it purely was an oversight and unintentional. In 2016, I made a $700 investment into Tin Moon Corporation. The company had no revenues in 2016, and it had no employees in 2016. Although below the reporting threshold, I subsequently amended my 2016 Financial Disclosure to disclose the investment.

ITEM 2: Failed to list I was a Director of Tin Moon Corporation on my 2016 Financial Disclosure.
RESPONSE: That is correct, and it purely was an oversight and unintentional. Since I inadvertently omitted the $700 investment, I forgot to list the Director position. I have never been paid to be a Director of Tin Moon. I am not an employee of Tin Moon Corporation, nor have I ever been paid for any position in Tin Moon Corporation. I subsequently amended my 2016 Financial Disclosure to disclose the unpaid Director position. Also, I am not an officer of the company.

ITEM 3: My official government House photo was used on the Tin Moon Corporation website.
RESPONSE: I have nothing to do with the operations of this company. I am basically a silent/passive investor. I did not consent or give permission to use my official photo (or any photo), and, in fact, I had no idea my official photo was placed on the website. I would not have given permission to use any photo of me. Had I known it was on the website, I would have requested immediately that it be taken down. I have since learned that the other owner and manager of Tin Moon Corporation, Ed Graham, on his own (and without my knowledge or my permission) searched the Internet and found a photo of me to use for the website. It happened to be my official House photo. The manager had no idea it was a problem, and I was not made aware of it. My Chief of Staff upon being made aware of the photo, notified the manager immediately to remove the photo from the website. Additionally, nowhere in my Bio (that used the picture) was it mentioned that I was a Congressman.
ITEM 4: John Ferland, my District Director at the time and now my Chief of Staff, recorded a video that was placed on the Tin Moon Corporation website.
RESPONSE: Once again, I have never worked at Tin Moon Corporation, and I am not involved in the daily operations of the company. Ed Graham has subsequently told me after inquiry that he asked John (then my District Director) offhandedly to record a video in Ed’s office talking about the company simply because John and Ed are friends independently of John’s House employee status. It had nothing to do with John’s (or my) official position with the House. John’s House position was not referenced or that he worked on my staff. John did not receive any compensation for the video. I personally had no idea this was done, nor had I actually ever seen the video. John did not give permission and did not know the video was uploaded to the Tin Moon Corporation website, nor that it was ever used for any purpose. The AP article says that the video was uploaded from my account. I have no idea to what account they are referring. All I can say is I was not aware that any account of mine existed let alone that it was used to upload a video to the Tin Moon Corporation website.

The Committee’s consideration and guidance regarding these matters is very much appreciated, and I look forward to working toward bringing this matter to a quick resolution.

Re: REVIEW NO. 18-2049

Dear Mr. Ashmawy,

I write to explain some of the circumstances surrounding the incidents that sparked the Office of Congressional Ethics’ review of Representative Rod Blum. I am the co-owner and manager of Tin Moon Corporation, as well as the president of Digital Canal. I am dismayed by the nature of the accusations being pointed at Representative Blum. It is my hope that this letter will assist the Office of Congressional Ethics in concluding its review in an amicable and expedient manner.

Tin Moon was incorporated in 2016 and was funded by Representative Blum and Ed Graham as investors. Representative Blum, who made a singular seven hundred dollar ($700.00) investment on June 20, 2016 and I made a singular three hundred dollar ($300.00) investment on June 20, 2016. During all of 2016, Tin Moon had no employees, no revenues and no profits. The company existed basically only on paper. While Representative Blum is technically a Director of Tin Moon, he has never been paid by Tin Moon for being a Director, or for any work and has never been an employee or Manager. To be clear - Representative Blum has never been involved with any of the operations of Tin Moon.

Unfortunately, Representative Blum’s official House of Representatives photo indeed was placed on the Tin Moon website; however, Representative Blum was not involved with its placement in any way. As owner and manager, I run the daily operations of Tin Moon. As part of these daily operations, I decided to place Representative Blum’s image on the Tin Moon website without knowing that such utilization of the Congressman’s image was problematic. In fact, I was not aware that the image was Representative Blum’s “official” Congressional photo. Additionally, nowhere in Representative Blum’s biography on the website was it mentioned that he was a Congressman.

I similarly decided to place a video featuring a friend of mine, John Ferland who also happened to be Representative Blum’s District Manager in Iowa. John acted as an unpaid spokesperson, in which he stated he was representing Digital Canal Corporation on the Tin Moon website. Representative Blum did not direct, authorize, permit, or in any way empower me to use these images on this website. Nor did he know that I decided to do so. As stated above, Representative Blum is not involved with the day-to-day operation of Tin Moon, and website content certainly falls into this category. In fact, to my knowledge, Representative Blum did not know that I had placed these images on the websites until the Associated Press article was published. Upon his discovery of these images, Representative Blum asked me, through his Chief of Staff, to remove them immediately, which I did.

Moreover, I have never used Representative Blum’s position as a member of congress to market Tin Moon or Digital Canal – this makes no sense from a business stand point because I would immediately risk alienating 50 percent of the marketplace. I have never represented that any benefit would be passed onto any client because of Representative Blum’s position. Even more, Representative Blum’s biography on the website did not even mention the fact that he was a member of congress—nor was this fact mentioned anywhere else on the website. Because Representative Blum was not involved in the day-to-day operation of Tin Moon or Digital Canal, I am not aware of any instance in which he ever used his position to market or otherwise benefit either business in any way.

In sum, Representative Blum is not involved in the daily operations of Tin Moon or Digital Canal, does not generate any income from Tin Moon or Digital Canal as a Director or employee, did not authorize Tin Moon to use his image on its website, and did not use or permit anyone to use his position as a member of congress to the benefit of either business.

I appreciate your office’s consideration of these facts and hope it takes them into consideration before making its decision.

About Us

BY SALES AND MARKETERS FOR SALES AND MARKETERS:

Rod Blum is the company’s CEO. Rod possesses a Masters Degree in Marketing and was the Valedictorian of his class at the University of Dubuque.

Rod's marketing expertise and leadership skills guided a small company to exponential growth resulting in the company’s public listing on the NASDAQ Exchange. Rod's marketing expertise was paramount in this accomplishment. At various times during his tenure he and the company he led received many awards. Some of the most notable include:

- Earnest & Young “Entrepreneur of the Year”
- Magazine – “Inc. 500” (not Inc. 5,000) – 3 times before going public
- Fast Company Magazine “100 Fastest Growing Tech firms”
- Softletter Ezine – “Softletter 100” – multiple times
- Company listing on the NASDAQ

After college Rod joined a small software company with good products but very little sales and marketing knowledge or expertise. Rod's skills were proven quickly and he was made an owner of the company whereby he used his marketing, sales and leadership skills to grow the company.

This growth resulted in a doubling of revenues each year for several years. As a result, the incredible revenue growth culminated with the company “going public” on the NASDAQ Exchange just 5 years after Rod joined the company.

Ed Graham is the company’s President and oversees day to day operations.
Internet began to become the frontier in sales and marketing.

Ed served as a Vice President of multiple divisions of the NASDAQ listed company. This included the Emerging Markets divisions where the dawning of the Internet would eventually shape sales and marketing activities to the level it has today.

Dear Helen,

As we discussed by phone, I am in receipt of your office’s RFI dated April 13, 2018 regarding our business dealings with Tin Moon Corporation. Allow me to provide a brief overview of what we call our “Affiliate Program”. We are a search engine optimization (SEO) company but we also teach SEO to those that are wanting to learn the business. Our program, through a Software Licensing Agreement, provides client management software we developed, training, and mentorship for our affiliates to be 100% independent on their own. It’s similar to a franchise opportunity but I (nor GetMePlacement, LLC) have any ownership or financial interests in the affiliate’s business. If any affiliate sells a client, I am not notified nor participate financially in the profits (or loss) with any client they may provide service to.

The following are my responses to your office’s questions:

1. GetMePlacement, LLC (GMP) entered into multi-part agreement with Tin Moon Corporation (TMC) and a third party to provide a Software Licensing Agreement (SLA) (for TMC) and optimization services for the third party. All of which was paid for by the third party that is not identified in your RFI; therefore, I believe it is confidential information that I do not feel comfortable disclosing. Regarding the relationship between me, GMP and any business I am affiliated with, I (nor GMP) have no corporate title, board membership nor ownership interest in TMC nor the third party mentioned above.

2. I did not create nor participate in any business plan for TMC, should one exist. As an “affiliate” and using GMP to perform the technical SEO work, we allow our affiliates to use GMP’s tech department’s reputation when again, GMP is performing the technical work. It should be clear when any affiliate references a client example, testimonial etc., that it is their tech team (or the GMP tech team) that boasts these abilities. It is GMP’s tech team that has performed optimization work for over 11,000 clients.

3. I have a copy of TMC’s site when it was created on 7/29/2016 but according to your correspondence, I am not to provide pdf’s, etc. During your visit, I can show you what was created originally as part of the SLA, but the site has changed significantly since then. The changes were not performed by me or GMP. I nor GMP hosts the TMC website.

4. The SLA includes GMP providing up to 5,000 sales leads to call upon. Beyond that, I am not aware of any specific client solicitations or marketing efforts on behalf of Tin Moon Labs, prior to launching them. I later learned of a reputation management marketing effort via various articles I saw online. This was discussed with Mr. Graham on a telephone call dated 2/26/18. Regarding client lists, there is a clause in our agreement that prohibits GMP from interfering with TMC and its clients. Should a client list exist, you will need to get that from TMC. I do know their first client was sold the 2nd quarter of 2017. I know this because they hired GMP to perform the technical work on the client’s website.

5. I have never seen, nor do I have access to profit and loss statements for TMC, should they exist.
6. I have never spoken to, met or corresponded with Representative Rod Blum nor John Ferland. I have not corresponded with Monty Alexander on or after February 1, 2018. The only correspondence I’ve had with Ed Graham since 2/1/2018 is regarding the website for another company, with the exception of the email correspondence attached. There is also the phone call mentioned above. Since the company we have corresponded about is not listed in the RFI, I do not feel it is appropriate to provide non-related/privileged correspondence.

I truly hope this helps give a better understanding of my relationship with Tin Moon. I have marked my calendar for 5/22/2018 from 10am to 11am for your visit.

Transcript of Interview of District Staffer
OCE Review No. 18-2049
May 15, 2018
Helen Eisner: This is Helen Eisner speaking from the Office of Congressional Ethics. I am joined by my colleague, Investigative Counsel Jeffrey Brown. This is Review 18-2049. We are here with [District Staffer]. Am I pronouncing that correctly?

District Staffer: Yes.

Helen Eisner: On May 15, 2018. We have given [District Staffer] a copy of the False Statements Act. He has signed the acknowledgment form and we will go ahead and get started.

Where do you currently work?

District Staffer: I work for Congressman Blum in his Dubuque office.

Helen Eisner: Okay. And what is your position in that office?

District Staffer: District Director.

Helen Eisner: And how long have you been District Director?

District Staffer: Since April 1.

Helen Eisner: And that's April 1 of this year?

District Staffer: 2018, yeah.

Helen Eisner: Okay. And prior to that where were you working?

District Staffer: I was in the jungle of South America for ten months. I worked for the Cathedral of the Immaculate Conception, associated with the Diocese of Georgetown. And I was essentially a humanitarian volunteer, or an unpaid worker I guess, for the Diocese of Georgetown in Guyana.

Helen Eisner: And the time period, that was ten months, so ten months prior to April 2018 approximately?

District Staffer: Yeah, ten months prior I was with Congressman Blum as his Regional Director in Dubuque.

Helen Eisner: Okay. And what was the time period for you serving as Regional Director?

District Staffer: Approximately a year perhaps. I don't know, a year. And then that was elevated from Staff Assistant or Field Rep. or whatever. And then...yeah.

Helen Eisner: So let me just break down those time periods. Let's start from Staff Assistant. When did you start as a Staff Assistant?
District Staffer: Yeah, it would be easier to go the other way. So he was elected in November of 2014. I began my work with him in February of 2015. And then, that was in Cedar Rapids, Iowa. And basically from 2015, the duration of that year, as a Staff Assistant, and then maybe halfway through that year, Field Rep. And then I was relocated to Dubuque, where I was a Field Rep/Regional Director. And then that would have brought us til-Helen Eisner: To the present.

District Staffer: To the jungle, and then now.

Helen Eisner: Okay. As District Director, what are your responsibilities?

District Staffer: I'm responsible for essentially anything that occurs in the congressional district that's associated with the official office. So we have three offices in the district and a staff of six other folks that are under my supervision. And then basically I'm just overseeing the constituent services and the official programming that we do.

Helen Eisner: Okay. And then, sort of comparing that to your time as Regional Director. What would your responsibilities have been, as Regional Director?

District Staffer: Regional Director would have been a micro version of what I'm doing now, probably just for the Dubuque office and region around Dubuque.

Helen Eisner: In your role as Regional Director, who did you report to?

District Staffer: District Director John Ferland. And ultimately Congressman Blum.

Helen Eisner: And John Ferland, was he District Director during the entire period of time that you worked for Representative Blum previously?

District Staffer: Yes.

Helen Eisner: So that's before you left to go to-District Staffer: Correct. Basically the whole...since Congressman Blum's been elected.

Helen Eisner: Okay. And where was he based, which office was he based in?

District Staffer: The Dubuque office is the head office, so he was based in Dubuque.

Helen Eisner: And, how often-

Third Party: I'm so sorry! I was just going to check. I'm sorry. I didn't know you were already in here.

Jeffrey Brown: Okay thank you.
